AMERICAN DOWNED 5 GERMAN PLANES

Want Lufbery Thought He Was a Frenchman, Until Applying for License.

Oct. 17.—Sergeant Raoul Lufbery of New Haven, Conn., the first American to be mentioned in a communique for bringing down five hosteroplanes, is known as the American who thought himself a Frenchman.

Lufbery's parents died when he was young and he was brought up in a family at Bourges. At the age of 18 he ran away from home and learned all over the world, turning his hand to all sorts of trades. At 21 he met the aviator, Marechal, who trained him as his assistant.

It was the first time that Lufbery discovered that he was an American was on the outbreak of the war, he met with Pourpe. He was taken on account of his nationality after many appeals was allowed to fight with Pourpe as his mechanic. He was killed soon afterward and Pourpe swore to avenge him. He turned his superiors to allow him to fly as a pilot and his request was granted. Lufbery got his certificate last year and was transferred to the American flying when it was formed. He brought all of the five German machines down for mention in the communique since July 30. The first three brought down within three days.

IMAR BETHEA

AMUSEMENTS.

"Sally in Our Alley," the much talked of motion picture attraction, which features two prominent stars, Mr. Carlyle Blackwell and Miss Muriel Osier, will be the offering for the Carnegie Library benefit at the Queen Theater tomorrow afternoon and night. It is an appealing motion picture production replete with high-strung situations which make the heart jump, the nerves quiver, the hand tremble—a fascinating document of society and lower East Side life, contrasted as never before on the screen, blending into a most pleasant concoction, a touch of comedy and tragedy, a bit of life and strife, abundantly mixed with love and hatred, dissolving into a most absorbing melodrama of modern times. Besides lending you aid to the library, the institution which we are all proud of, you will be getting your money's worth with good measure by attending the Queen tomorrow and enjoying this beautiful motion picture gem.

The Dixie Tonight.

It doesn't of necessity mean that a good motion picture inferiorly photographed is a failure, but the greatest enjoyment is secured from the irresistible combination of a strong play excellently photographed and brilliantly acted.

This love story of international complications and situations is a most attractive setting for beautiful Rita Jolivet, who plays with convincing reality and irresistible charm the starring part. Miss Jolivet is thoroughly qualified for the part, as she is in real life an Italian countess. Her magnificent gowns in this production are a revelation.

You can generally tell false teeth from real ones because they are more perfect than natural teeth.
